FULL PRIZE LIST OF RECENT WAINWRIGHT SCHOOL FAIR

As mentioned in our issue of last week the recent school fair was the most successful of its kind anywhere in the province. Such was the report of Supervisor Heckbert of Vermilion who was in charge of the judging of exhibits and he should surely know.

Some interesting facts have been brought out by Secretary Steve Bowman, in compiling his lists among which are the following: The number of schools in the fair association was eleven, and the total number of entries for competition at this year's fair was no less than 767. This necessitated a prize fund of upwards of $300.00 for exhibits alone, with a separate fund to cover the awards for athletic events. Out of a complete list of 115 classes on the programme only about a dozen had no entries whatever.

In class entries, the carrot class was well at the head of the list with a total of 67 competitors, while beet, cabbage and other garden truck all were entered in great numbers.

Taken as a whole the entries were all of excellent merit and only in two cases were the first prizes withheld on account of inferiority of the exhibits entered.

The following is a full list of prize winners in the bench events—

ENGLISH CHURCH IN SOUND SHAPE PLENTY OF FINANCE

KINGSTON — That the Church of England in Canada is in a sound financial position is shown by the report of the honorary treasurer, made public here last evening, which will be presented at the sessions of the general synod during the next few days. The capital funds in the hands of the synod amount to $1,091,770.40 and the gross interest received on this amount during the past year was $60,683.33.

Some $893,253 of the capital funds of the synod are lodged in the beneficiary fund to take care of pensions for retired clergymen and for their widows and orphans. During the year ending August 31, last, $23,046.30 was paid out in superannuation pensions and $12,452.73 in pensions to widows and orphans of deceased clergymen.

In connection with beneficiary funds the report of a joint commission of the general synod urges immediate steps towards the launching of a beneficiary scheme for the whole church in Canada which would be free from the diocesan limitations of the present arrangement.

FARMERS OF OUR DISTRICT INVESTING FOR BUMPER CROP

As an indication of the bumper crop harvest which is being taken off in this district, it is only necessary to mention that new threshing machines and tractor orders are being filled galore by the machine men of town.

During the past week Gene Torgy in forms that he has been real busy getting out the separator and tractor orders for the following farmers of the Wainwright district: Messrs. Rathwell, Sheridan & Locke; Mr. A. J. Martin; Mr. D. Rattray; Mr. Geo. Madder; Messrs. Valleau & Patterson; Mr. S. Merick; Messrs. Harper Bros.; Mr. L. B. Wallace; Mr. L. Torgeson; Mr. R. Morrison; and Messrs. Ruste & Reeves & Killy Bros.

The harvesting was held back some what by the inclement weather of last week, but the prevailing winds are drying out the stocks nicely, and this week will see many of the threshers "making it hum" and the elevator men will start their nightly vigils so as to give full service.

From all reports by telephone over a wide area, there seems every prospect that in many places the yields will give from 35 to 40 bushels per acre while the average over the whole district should prove to equal if not surpass the highest record for any year taken off our farms at this point.

Oats are looking to give a heavy yield, too, and samples available show practically no sign of damage from any cause.

The hired help situation is by no means acute, although there is a possible opening for a few more hands on threshing gangs to wind up the season.

The harvest thanksgiving services at St. Thomas' church have been set for Sunday September 25th both morning and evening, with a three o'clock service in the afternoon at Gilt Edge.

Mr. Frank Sanderson, of Edmonton is in town this week in connection with his business interests in the oil business at this point.

REPORTS SHOW PRAIRIE HARVESTERS DELAYED BY RAIN

Until a few days ago the weather of the past two weeks has been favorable, and a large crop is in sight in the Prairie Provinces says the Bank of Montreal crop report. Harvesting is not yet far enough advanced to determine in definite form grades and yields. Cutting has proceeded rapidly, and but for intermittent rains in practically every section threshing would now be general. Weather conditions generally in Quebec have been favourable to harvesting operations. In Ontario fine weather has enabled farm work to be well advanced, but fall ploughing is hampered by dryness. In the Maritimes wet weather is making harvesting difficult and crops have suffered damage. In British Columbia continuous rains have seriously delayed harvesting, and much damage to crops is reported.

Alberta. Western Area: Rain has slowed general harvesting operations. An average of 60% of wheat is now cut except in Lethbridge district, where further rains are delaying cutting. A good average yield of all grains is assured, and with favourable weather, satisfactory grades will be fairly general. Northeastern Area: 70% of wheat is cut, and cutting of coarse grain is underway. Generally conditions continue promising and yield are good average. Southeastern Area: The eye is threshing out well over 60% of wheat is cut, and good yield and grade are promised. Saskatchewan Northern Area: Cutting is practically completed and threshing is becoming general. While the yield is generally satisfactory, there will be much low-grade grain.

WORK COMMENCED ON WAINWRIGHT MUNICIPAL HOSPITAL

The past week has certainly seen quick action of the work entailed in the erection of the new municipal hospital for the Wainwright hospital district.

The work of getting out the cellarage and foundation for the commencement of actual concrete operations is in the hands of Mr. W. Bibby, and is progressing with all despatch, and within the next few days it is hoped to start pouring the concrete.

The well for the institution is now completed and after having been tested by pumping it is found to produce an unlimited supply of splendid water. It is placed in such position that at the conclusion of the erection it will be inside the pump-house which is part and parcel of the hospital building.

Messrs. Guthrie Bros. drilled the well, which is something over two hundred feet in depth and is cased with three-inch galvanised piping.

It is proposed to have the building erected and shelled in within the next month or six weeks, according to Superintendent Barron, who is in charge of the work for Mr. Toby of Edmonton, the contractor.

OTTAWA FIGURES SAY LESS BIRTHS MORE MARRIAGES

OTTAWA — Canadian marriages are increasing. During the month of February last a total number of 4,322 marriages were recorded in the dominion, representing an increase of 327 over February, 1926. The total of 4,322 established a record for all years from and including 1921.

Living births in the dominion for February last registered a decrease of 1,011 as compared with February 1926. During February according to a report of the dominion bureau of statistics 17,181 births were recorded, whereas in February 1926 the total was 18,282. Of the total of 17,181 for the period under review, Quebec's share was 6,049 leaving 11,132 for the other provinces. The falling off was contributed to by all nine provinces. Twin births numbered 232 while there were three sets of triplets in which all children were born alive.

We are glad to know that Mr. Ralph Hibberd, who has been suffering from a bad attack of tonsillitis is now getting along nicely.

SPECIAL EFFORTS BEING MADE TO GET MORE MEN

EDMONTON — A thousand men short for harvesting in Alberta is the word that comes from the provincial labor branch at the start of the week. It is going to be the peak week, too, and special efforts are being made to secure workers from various sources with whom the farmers' demands may be met.

In the hope of getting some relief from Washington states, a representative of the labor branch has been sent to Kingsgate, on the border, and will try there to pick up a number of men from Spokane and adjacent parts of the state.

A similar effort is to be made, if possible at Coats, where harvesters from Montana will be diverted to Alberta if authorities will permit.

Railway section crews were released for farm work on Sept. 15, according to advices from the railway offices and it is hoped that 1,000 men or thereabouts will be available from that source. Construction crews will not likely be released as the railways have full programmes of work ahead of them for the rest of the season.

THRILLING WAR PICTURE BRINGS CORINNE GRIFFITH

"The Lady in Ermine," Corinne Griffith's latest film spectacle which shows Friday and Saturday sees destined to win a place among the best picture productions this year. In star, story and setting it eclipses every other costume picture this season.

A war picture unfolding a true and dramatic episode of the War of 1810 between Italy and Austria. "The Lady in Ermine" again affords the star an opportunity to set off her pale beauty in the regal robes of European court life.

As the Countess Marianna, Corinne is cast as the mistress of a castle in an Italian town on the Austrian border. War breaks out just as her wedding nuptials, to the Count Adrian, have been celebrated and the bridegroom is called away to command his troops.

The Austrian headed by the famous General Dostal (Francis X. Bushman) capture the town and make the castle their headquarters.

There the General further kidnaps himself into believing he is a "lady's man" by pressing unwelcome attentions upon the Countess.

Adrian is captured and condemned to death as a spy. Now in the castle there is a picture of Adrian's grandmother, posed in an Ermine cloak around which has grown a legend of a beautiful sacrifice. It is related that the grandmother, when the French had invaded the town, years before, had gone, in the French commander's rooms in this Ermine cloak as the price of her husband's life.

Cynically Dostal reminds the Countess Marianna of the legend when her husband is captured and offers her the same alternative, her honor or her husband's life.

The manner in which the Countess outwits the General (yes, she does don the ermine cloak) and the Austrians are driven out of the town comes as one of the most thrilling plots.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

To the Editor.

Dear Sir—Having read lengthy articles re the advantages of bringing in a surplus of men from foreign countries to work on the farm, I feel disappointed that one, seems to think of a help for the farm wife. Anyone will admit that she is sadly overworked the year around, especially so at this time of year with two or more extra men to cook for in addition to the work of preserving and pickling as well as fall sewing for the school children. There is fully work enough for two or three pair of hands, yet the farm wife, like the farmer himself has only one pair to do everything with. We know well that domestic help is so scarce in this country that it is impossible to find help to hire at any price during harvest and threshing time even in the case of illness. The few that are go to town in preference even though the pay is less, because they can go to town every night walk on the sidewalk whenever they leave the door and get up late in the morning in the country one can get the required eight hours rest and be up at five o'clock in the morning and feed it.

I hope you will encourage a great number of good honest, domestic girls to come over here also, not just to marry all the old bachelors, but to help our farm women. And I, for one can assure them that they will be treated (not mis-treated) as a member of the family that is with due respect and kindness. I believe they will find the average farm home like this. Anyway, there is ample choice, a girl need not stay in a home that is uncongenial to her. Also I would like to assure the farm wives that they need have no fear in taking a girl of foreign language in her home as they speak English quickly, I am speaking of Danish girls, as I have been intimately acquainted with some of them from their first arrival and their employers were always satisfied with them.

Let us hear more on this vital subject. Yours in hopes.

Don't Tell The Wife

Copyright 1926 Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.

by

WILLIAM B. COURTNEY

"DON'T TELL THE WIFE" starring Irene Rich, is a Warner Bros.
picture production of this novel

"Nonsense! You'll be on the cruise. He won't revoke the invitation. And whilst he may not exactly greet you as a long lost brother, he'll be cordial enough!"

Ranny shrugged. Plainly he was not at all confident of the accuracy of Clay's forecast. And, plainly too he could not discern that it would make much difference even if it should turn out that the cruise invitation still stood.

"Then what?" he grunted.

"And you're a wild man! A soldier of fortune! And yet you let me do all the thinking for you—me who has never fought any harder or more dangerous battle than a pinch game at the Racquet and Riding club! Well, little boy, it so happens that there's the germ of six life floating around in my brain. And all for your benefit. Now listen to this—"

"Thenupon Clay Varick proceeded to unfold this plan, piece by piece, elaborating and improving upon it as he talked, the while Ranny Forbes drove steadily through the darkling of Long Island countryside—through Mineola and East Williston, and Floral Park, and Jamaica, towards the lights of old Fifth Avenue."

As Clay talked Ranny's sombreness dropped away gradually. He chuckled. He smiled. Finally he actually laughed.

And when Clay, with a verbal flourish, concluded the description of his scheme Ranny guffawed and slapped him on the back.

"Your not such a useless old buzzard after all," he chorled affectionately and admiringly. "Then one last clinging doubt assailed him and was brushed."

"But suppose Joan doesn't come home before Friday. Suppose she has run off for good with Abner?"

"In that case go a-gunning soon! But if we do go on that yachting trip all you need," Clay preened with a myrical grin, "is a bicycle bell and a box of hard crackers!"

CHAPTER VII

As long Island's North Shore is the adding place and the land playground of fashionable, society, so are the north side waters of Long Island the famous Sound, a paradise for the yachting enthusiasts of the smartest circles.

The "bad bugs" of the young and daring and the towering one masters of the aristocrats of wind craft sailors skim and dart and cleave through its emerald waters from Sand's Point to Port Jefferson, while far to the eastward from Old Field Point lighthouse rove on summer and fall week-ends, the palatial motored cruisers and steam yachts of those mature and solid folk who like the sedate cup of yachting which is power cruising but not the cocked of it which is sailing.

The latter calls for uncomfortable positions, minutes without end while lying full length on awash decks merely for the thrill of dodging an in terminately swinging boom.

But the former—effortless, swift motion; deep lounging chairs; suspended hours of supreme comfort—the scene of physical ease.

Out of Port Washington and Glen Cove and Oyster Bay and Huntington they slide proudly of Friday afternoons, these craft of the people who have money and know how to live.

Monarch of all that fleet, from thirty-two foot cruisettes to two hundred foot ships, was Livingston Stivner's mammoth and luxurious steam yacht, the Speedwell as it gently slipped its buoy moorings inside the Glen Cove breakwater abreast the clubhouse on the Friday following the fatal polo game.

Clay Varick had been right. Joan and Ranny Forbes were abroad. Great man, too, of course, and some half dozen guests in addition to Stivner. When Ranny had returned home from the club late the night following the game he had found Joan already there. She was alone and there was no sign that she had been otherwise for a long time. Acting upon specific instructions from Clay Ranny had not essayed to ferret out of her any information about her lark with Abner—where, and how long she had been. She had vouchsafed no explanation. Therefore the matter had remained at status quo, except that Ranny's failure to take her to task for not waiting for him, had aroused in Joan a guarded watchfulness that had lasted through until this afternoon.

It had led her to puzzle over the utter lack of nagging suspicion in his manner this last day or two.

It had led her to wonder, upon the mysterious small box he had insisted upon putting in their week-end bag.

And it had caused her no small pang of surprise when she manifested an uncommon interest this afternoon in the blonde widow, Mrs. Clemmons.

who was also a guest. THE Mrs. Clara Clemmons THAT Mrs. Clemmons

Three things Joan knew in her married woman's perspicacity about such things. First, that all the widows are dangerous; second, that all widows named Clara are more dangerous; and third, that blonde widows named Clara are most dangerous.

Clare was gushing. Clare was pale and ethereal with hair the color of sun bleached strawberries, eyes like a faintly hazed blue sky, firm, creamy shoulders. From her perfect '34 up she looked for all the world like a delectable breakfast dish.

Clare had a lip—oh, ever so slight a lip. Clare had money—oh, ever so much money. Clare was, in fact, the richest widow in America. Clare's whiffy, wispy frocks were the despair of feminine society, dowagers and debs and in between.

And Clare had an enticing habit of "just adoring" everything and everybody—that is those things and those bodies that intrigued her somewhat fickle, though quick flaming interest.

Livingstone Stivner had included her amongst his choice guests because she "just adored" his lumber kingdom from the far west.

Clay Varick knew this, and therefore he was caused considerable apprehension when, as Clare met Ranny, she delightedly blurted that she "adored" famous polo players.

Livingstone Stivner seemed none too happy to observe the pointed and in Clare's manner the unmistakable pin points of flame in her eyes as she gazed up into Ranny's handsome face.

Ranny himself was quite surprised at the abrupt development of under currents in what had been planned as a congenial, jolly meal. He might have been rendered ill all case except that he was broadly conscious of Abner hovering beside Joan. That made it practicable as well as painless to respond to Clare's gracious warmth!

Clay grinned inwardly cursing Ranny for an ass and longing to give him a swift kick to good Lord! Was Ranny fated to always unconsciously oppose Stivner's purposes? Through the machinations of Fate, to always criss-cross his path against the grain of the lumber king's private interests?

Joan for her part, had suddenly re-examined attentiveness to the persistent chatter of Abner at her ear. She had greeted Clare very coolly, indeed, mentally assuring herself while she had made no mistake in disliking Mrs. Clemmons from the first occasion upon which she had met her, years ago.

(The Forbes had been the last of the invited guests to arrive.

A soft treading Filipino steward had bowed them from the gangway head to their suite a lovely apartment consisting of two bedrooms, each complete with shower and dressing rooms and a large central sitting room. In addition to the bedroom doors and two close compartments, a private sun deck opened off of the sitting room.

Ranny and Joan hurriedly changed into spotless yachting togs and ascended to the awning sheltered, wicker furnished lounge.

Here Ranny became the instantaneous object of Clare's lively attention. Here too, Abner fairly leapt out of his chair to claim Joan.

Thus it was that when the Forbes finally sat down those, of the week-ends not directly involved settled themselves with many knowing looks and nudges, to a spell of spicily enjoyable watching and waiting.

The Speedwell was already under a full head of steam, sliding out into the broad, sunny Sound and nosing due East. It was a placid day with the promise of an amber sunset in the unclouded sky. A bracing autumnal wind flecked spume from the green waters carved up by the piercing bows and made the heavy sweaters—universally worn by the idling crowd—come in very comfortably.

It was the sort of wind that bites the blood and touches the flame of life and love to combustible pulses.

In the case of Abner the effect was humorous arson. Lustful mists filled his brain like warm aromas of Sicilian days, scarcely able to contain him self he whispered to Joan:

"I've been looking things over. I can climb down your private sun deck without detection—tonight—"

Cautious as Abner was, Clay overheard.

Meanwhile Clare's tossing little head had also been planning she breathed into Ranny's ear:

"I'm one of those strange persons who collect famous signatures. I'd just adore yours in my book. Won't you drop by my stateroom this evening?"

Livingstone Stivner inadvertently overheard that!

Your real soldier of fortune loves intrigue.

To him it is the Cocktail of Life; as battle is its beer, and adventure its gin, and roaming its rum.

As all the adverse currents and involved cross purposes of that wild-bound group on the luxurious lounge deck of the "Speedwell" flowed into the reservoir of his consciousness an exciting sparkle welled behind Ranny Forbes' keen eyes.

He had come prepared—literally as well as figuratively—for some grim frolic with the man who was trying to steal his wife.

He had not expected, however, to find himself in danger of being stolen from his wife.

Blonde Clare's obvious blandishments, as such, had not meant much

Druggists, Grocers and in Ranny's young life until he became aware of the effect three billion dollar widow's play for him was having upon his wife.

At first he did not understand why Joan should mind, in view of her own extramarital interests in Abner Grattman. If she were sincere in her demands for a divorce, it should be to her advantage to encourage intimacies between her husband and another woman. That would be the logical thing to do.

But Ranny, in common with the rest of the mankind, realized in his superior way that it was too much an affair of the heart was concerned.

Inconsistency, thy name is Married Woman! So mused Ranny contentedly.

Joan was letting silly feminine pride interfere with clear reasoning. That was as plain as the mole on Mrs. Remington Tiffin's sternum. It was a matter of vanity with Joan that if any genuine philandering were to be done in the family, it would be done by her.

Selfish as well as stubborn. That was Joan all over.

As benign as it is possible to look at forty odd, Ranny looked—as he smiled with arch indifference toward Joan—meanwhile making plain that he was more interested in Clare's flaxen hair and buttocks of an ear at that moment than anything else in the world including his lawful wedded wife, Joan.

"I shall certainly stop in and sign the book," he whispered to Clare, feeling very risqué.

Whereupon a seductive mist diffused over the large and luscious—but not too innocent nor too trustful faces that were the beacons of Clare's fickle soul and imparted to their blues the remote dreaminess of a winter sky.

Silken and fleet, one little hand brushed an understanding pat on Ranny's bronzed nose, which, gripped the side of Clare's chair as he leaned toward her.

Delicate the smile and subtle the touch—but they were not lost upon several dissembling companions, notably Clay Stivner and Joan.

Not least important, Abner Grattman, too, furtively drank in the by-play; and used it, the next instant, to the account of his own suit.

IMPERIAL ATTRACTING INVESTORS

Imperial Oil continues to rise in price.

In recent weeks, there has been improvement in the oil situation generally. Imperial Oil is in position to benefit greatly from any improvement which affects the industry as a whole. The output of International Petroleum has been increased recently at no great additional cost of production. An agreement whereby production from the same fields would be affected, would facilitate the profitable marketing of the products of International Petroleum. International is a subsidiary of Imperial Oil. International Petroleum pays in cash dividends to its parent more than half enough to pay the cash dividends of Imperial Oil to its shareholders.

Imperial Oil has been extending its interests in the Alberta field. New properties have been acquired and old ones have been made more profitable. The sale of natural gas to utility companies provides a source of revenue which is likely to grow, especially if the prosperity of the West is enhanced as is expected.

Imperial Oil is interested heavily in the retail distribution of gasoline and oil, as well as in producing refining and transportation. While there is a keen competition in the retailing of gasoline in Canada, a far-sighted policy has enabled this company, it is believed, to continue these operations at a profit.

ADVERTISING OUR COUNTRY

A British newspaperman, who is now fortunately for himself, on his way home and therefore out of the immediate reach of wrathful Canadians, handed us a dirty swat under the belt just before he hopped it for the home-bound liner. Said he, "Canadians talk too much about their country and themselves," and he went on to amplify this statement with concrete instances as to long speeches jammed full of statistics, which nobody could even hope to remember and wouldn't remember if he could, says the Vegreville Observer.

No doubt part of the dire ire raised by this critical comment is due to the unhappy truth of it. Canadians are becoming a trifle addicted to an undue effort to toss the male cow. An extenuating feature may be found that Canada is next door to the land of the boot-legger and the home of the hijacker, where the Great God Blah reigns supreme. Sometimes one cannot help inclining to the belief that "Boost Yourself" should be the American motto instead of "In God We Trust." Anyway, this matter of self-praise by Canadian of themselves and their country is more of an imported disease than one indigenous to Canada.

Not so long ago, if memory serves us right, Canadians were urged to blazon abroad their own superlative virtues and the superlative excellence of their country. But now, according to this British visitor, we are overdoing it. It is a hard matter to arrive at a happy medium. Most people who are called on to speak are subjected to terrible experiences. First they hate to start; next they hate to stop. Worse than that, after they have stopped they immediately remember that not once did they give vent to those snappy periods which they rehearsed at such length beforehand. O dear, we have all been there.

WHEAT POOL TO STAY DECLARES MANAGER PURDY

"The wheat pool by its achievements since its organization has justified its existence and there is very little likelihood that it will become defunct within the next five years according to R. D. Purdy, general manager of the pool who addressed a meeting of the Canadian Credit Men's Association.

If in the course of the years to come anything happens that may force the pool out of business as it is at present, (declining), said Mr. Purdy, it will be succeeded by another similar organization which will carry on on the same general basis, because the idea of co-operative marketing has come to stay he declared.

No doubt the question arises in the minds of many business men as to what exactly is the relation between the good member and his association, whether or not he is satisfied with what has been accomplished. Mr. Purdy declared, "Our pool has been in operation for four years and in Saskatchewan and Manitoba three years, and at this date twelve months in 1927; in 1927 our first contract price for wheat of the three provinces has clearly signified their satisfaction of the operation of the pool by renewing their contracts and its continuing for an additional period of five years is definitely assured along similar lines to that which has been in operation for the past four years."

CANADA'S DEBT NOW SHOWS DECREASE

OTTAWA—Canada's net debt decreased by $63,769,167 during the first five months of the present fiscal year which opened on April 1, according to the monthly financial statement just issued by the department of finance.

On March 31 the net debt totalled $2,347,834,370; while at the end of last month it had dropped to $2,284,045,213. During the corresponding five months of the previous fiscal year, there was a decrease in the net debt of $49,414,588 or more than $14,000,000 less than the decrease thus far this year.

Both ordinary revenues and ordinary expenditures of the Dominion recorded increases during the five-month period just ended as compared with the same months in 1926-27. Ordinary revenue for the five months under review amounted to $186,768,250, as compared with $174,121,255 in the corresponding period of last year. This is an increase of $10,546,995. During the month of August alone, ordinary revenue recorded an increase of $1,459 over August, 1926.

KILLING A WOUNDED CUSTOMER

When a customer comes in with a complaint, he is wounded. If you treat him rudely or suspiciously, he is killed. A very retailer should know this fact and teach it to all his sales people—that a customer with a complaint must be treated with extra courtesy and friendliness.
 A complaint bringing customer is hurt. He needs "First Aid to the Injured."
 He has already had one crack from your shop, or thinks he has. If you give him another crack, he is lost to you forever after.
 A complaining customer is at the crossroads. Where he goes depends on how you treat him. He will become either a dead customer or a live and loyal one.
 So, make sure that you have a record system in your firm for the special treatment of wounded customers. Don't knock them on the head, as some people do, when they come in wounded.—Exchange.

WINTER CARE OF THE DAIRY HERD
 Dairy cattle have been kept at the Dominion Experimental Station at Rothbar since 1914, and although methods of feeding and management are in some respects different from those in most herds, the health and vigor production of the animals comprising the herd are such as to justify what has been done. Cattle do not seem to know whether the stable is painted or unpainted whether it is made of dressed lumber or logs, their production and condition of health does not seem to vary with temperature. These are however, affected by feeds regularly of feeding draughts exercise and sunshine. The cow in milk and the calves dropped after July 1st are kept in stables free from draughts and so ventilated as to be supplied with dry fresh air, but not warm. The temperature frequently dropped below zero. It is convenient for the herdsman to have water in the managers but the temptation then is to deprive the cows of sufficient exercise and sunshine. If turned out twice daily for water, irrespective of the weather the cattle are more healthy. Calves dropped before July first, bulls and unfreshened heifers do not require stables. They thrive in corrals having pole and straw shelter over the north end. When provided with plenty of fresh bedding they do not mind the low temperature, although wind affects them adversely. It is better if the shelter can be closer in time of a storm. Cattle can be carried through the winter under such conditions increasing in weight if they have sufficient feed of the right kind. They thrive better if feeding, watering and milking are carried out with regularity.

 Government crop estimate issued this week has caused bearish sentiment and prices tased off. Rain held harvesting up during past few days. Frost in several parts of Alberta last night will do more or less damage; fortunately quite a lot of grain cut.
BUTTERFAT—BUTTER
 BUTTERFAT—Advance of 1c in price was made on Tuesday of the week. Decreased production in main source of raise. Special grade now 38c first, 36c second 34c at the centralizers while country point quotations are 26c lower.

NINTH MONTHLY GOVT. CROP REPORT
 Rain during past week delayed harvesting operations over most of the province. Light frost occurred in some parts of Southern Alberta but so far as can be determined, no material age has been done.
 Harvesting in the Grande Prairie district is almost completed. Through the remainder of the province, reports indicate that up to 90 per cent. wheat is in the stack. Some of the wheat has been cut slightly on the north side of the whole the indications are that the general yield will be good.
 There is considerable lodging of wheat and barley in certain districts. It will make the crop somewhat difficult to handle but is not likely to be any great amount of loss. Harvesting has just commenced in some of the earlier districts, but will be general for another ten days or two weeks.
 Indications go to show that there will be a heavy yield of all the grain crops throughout the whole province.
 Short has been reported short in a few districts but in general it did appear that there is a sufficient yield.

 To the tourist, life's a ramble.
 To the copper, life's a pinch.
 To the umpire, life's a blunder.
 To the jockey, life's a race.
 To the baby, life's a wonder.
 To the editor, life's a space.
 To the farmer, life's a season.
 To the chorus girl, life's a strip.
 To the teacher, life's a reason.
 To the bootlegger, life's a hip.
 Each niche yields from life his due.
 And the question comes my brother,
 Just how much is life to you?
